

What's New in Choices Planner for Career Transitions?

We've been listening to your suggestions for improving Choices Planner for Career Transitions (CT)! Here are some of the new features and enhancements we've added to improve your Choices Planner CT experience.

To mark the addition of these new features, we've updated the look of the sign-in page with new graphics and photos. We think you'll enjoy all the changes.

What's New Fall 2009

Increased portfolio storage – Help clients make the most of their portfolios. We've increased the storage size of their portfolios so they can store more information for more personalized plans.

Portfolio passwords – To further tighten the security of our site and to reduce the number of typos in portfolio passwords, we now ask for passwords to be entered twice when creating a portfolio.

Do What You Are results – If your site also subscribes to Do What You Are, the assessment results will be stored in the portfolios under Your Personality Type & Learning Style.

Learning Style Inventory results – If your site also subscribes to the Learning Style Inventory, the assessment results will be stored in the portfolios under Your Personality Type & Learning Style.

Search by personality type in the Career Finder – Clients can find careers suited to their personality by searching by their Myers-Briggs Type Indicator.

Cluster Finder – Clients can explore career areas that might interest them with the Cluster Finder. The Cluster Finder will recommend career clusters based on their interests and skills.

What's New Spring 2009

Improved accessibility – We've enhanced Choices Planner CT so it's easy to use with assistive technologies. Although it's impossible to test every assistive technology product, the standards and policies we used in these enhancements make Choices Planner CT compatible with most products.

Professional Tools – Professionals can now batch print course plans to save time.
