Career Futures[®]

Making Smart High School Plans

Becoming More Aware

Career Futures is all about engaging self-awareness to help students learn how interests, education, earnings and skills relate to jobs. Students are constantly being asked: "What are you going to be when you grow up?" It's a hard question to answer, but Career Futures can help. There's lots to explore, starting from within the student.

Real World Context

Hands-on career activities enhance self-awareness and workplace realities. Students learn about their likes and dislikes, living on a budget and how to write a resume. Career Futures helps students explore various occupations and the education levels needed, as well as employability skills and their value in the workplace.

Expanding the Career Horizon

Career Futures gives students quick access to current and useful information about more than 650 occupations, complete with O*NET data and descriptions for over 2,000 additional occupations. School to career planning is easier with suggested school courses for 9th-12th grade with career pathways and Department of Labor Career Clusters. You can even add your local perspective by including your state's Career Clusters!

Feature-Packed Career Futures

- Electronic portfolio
- 650+ O*Net occupations
